The 90-Day Roadmap

Earn at least ₹35,000 a month selling for US and UK clients from India within 90 days, starting from zero experience and a lot of fear. An English channel answering weird questions about space, AI and the human body compounds in the background. Everything from how your voice sounds on a call, to how a funnel is built, to how a deal is closed.

Track A · Remote sales for US/UK clients

Track B · Curiosity questions: space, AI, the body

Starting point · fear → reps

Built for
India-based · ~6 hrs/day (3 silent) · live client work in your evening

Target
₹35K/month floor by day 90 · months 4–12 to a real career

THE VERDICT, STRAIGHT

Sales is your income engine. Content is your compounding asset. For you, that means a remote, text-first sales seat for a US or UK company, worked in your evening (their working day), paying at least ₹35K a month by day 90. Content is your own show: weird questions about space, AI and the human body, answered in English. It can stay faceless; only your job applications need a little camera time. Your biggest risk is not skill or time. It's fear. So this plan treats fear as a skill, with a ladder you climb one rung at a time.

The plan in 7 lines

1. Weeks 1–2: climb the first fear rungs while learning. Private voice memos, Sales Dojo's AI calls, public comments, role-plays with friends. Learn voice, listening and discovery. Set up Wise or Payoneer and an English LinkedIn profile.
2. Weeks 3–5: apply to 60+ remote roles (appointment setter, SDR, lead generation) for US/UK companies, each with a 2-minute Loom. Prefer roles with an hourly base or per-show pay. Commission-only is upside, not your floor.
3. Weeks 6–12: work the seat 19:00–23:00 IST, Monday to Friday. That's the UK afternoon and the US East Coast morning. Review your conversations daily. Fix the leakiest funnel stage weekly.
4. Content alongside: 3 faceless English shorts a week, each answering one curiosity question ("Does 4D exist?"). Your voice, your script, your visuals. About 35 shorts and 4 long videos by day 90.
5. Fallbacks: no seat by day 45 → sell short-form editing to US/UK creators (async, text-only). Under ₹20K a month at day 60 → add a second client. No income by day 75 → a full-time Indian US-process sales job as a 3–6-month bridge.
6. Your week: one 3-hour silent block every weekday plus the evening live block; light weekends. About 33–38 hours a week, inside your 5–6 h/day budget. Bad days have a 30-minute minimum. Never zero, never miss twice. No regular shifts past midnight IST.
7. Months 4–12: setter → closer, or SDR → account executive. Content moves to long-form, a named show and a newsletter. Long-term model: Justin Welsh (sales expert turned creator) crossed with Cleo Abram (a specific, optimistic sci-tech show).

Day-90 scoreboard

AREA	FLOOR (MUST HIT)	TARGET	STRETCH
Income	₹35K/month run-rate	₹50K/month	Closer seat, or ₹80K+/month
Fear ladder	Rung 8 + K5: a mock call and a mock video interview	Rung 10: real setter conversations daily	Rung 11: real voice calls with leads
Sales reps	300 simulated + 200 real conversations	1,000+ real conversations logged	Top-3 on your team's board
Content	24 shorts, 2 long videos	35 shorts, 4 long videos	One video at 3× your channel's average

₹35K is about $400 a month at ₹85–90 per dollar; check the live rate. The math for getting there is in Part 02. Pay ranges come from job ads and recruiter or vendor guides, not audited pay data, so treat them as planning ranges, not promises.

How to use this document

RULE 1 · APPLY WITHIN 48 HOURS

Never read a module without doing its drill within 48 hours. Reading feels like progress; only practice is progress. Aim for 1 hour learning : 2 hours doing.

RULE 2 · ONE VARIABLE AT A TIME

When something isn't working (reply rate, close rate, retention), change one thing, run it for a week, measure. Changing five things at once teaches you nothing.

RULE 3 · LOG EVERYTHING

Five lines a day: what you did, numbers, one thing that worked, one fix, energy level 1–10. After 30 days the log is better than any coach. It's also your proof.

RULE 4 · SIMULATED ≠ REAL

Sales Dojo is the gym. Real calls and DMs are the match. Use the Dojo to warm up and to drill weak spots. From week 5 onward, real reps should outnumber simulated ones.

PART 00

Straight talk: what is realistic

You asked not to be told what you want to hear. Here is what the evidence says, including the parts that are inconvenient.

Five hard truths

1 Content will not pay you in 90 days. Plan for that.

Ali Abdaal made essentially nothing from his first ~85 videos over about nine months, while working as a doctor.[10] Cleo Abram spent about five years at Vox learning the craft before going independent in January 2022.[1] Johnny Harris also spent about five years at Vox, with his own channel as a side project, before leaving in 2020.[5] Mark Rober worked nine years at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory and four at Apple while his channel grew.[7] The pattern is clear: the people you admire kept a paycheck while building. Your paycheck will come from sales.

2 Sales can pay in 60–90 days. It can also pay zero.

Entry-level sales is one of the few skilled jobs that hire people with no degree in the subject and no experience, because your output (booked calls, revenue) is measurable within weeks. But commission-only roles are volatile, many "opportunities" are scams (Part 11), and plenty of beginners quit with nothing. The difference between people who get paid and people who don't is mostly volume of real conversations plus honest review of each one.

3 Do not split 50/50 for the first 90 days.

Two half-efforts make zero income. Run roughly 65% sales / 35% content until you have income, then rebalance with data at day 90. If you land a full-time sales job, the job is the sales block and content drops to about 1 hour a day plus a weekend batch.

4 Sales and content are one skill wearing two outfits.

A sales call is content for an audience of one; a video is a sales pitch to an audience of thousands. Both need a hook, a clear problem, tension, a simple explanation, proof, and a call to action. Your voice training helps your videos. Your hook writing helps your cold openers. Your sales conversations tell you what people actually care about, which becomes video ideas. This is the main reason pursuing both is rational, not greedy.

5 Motivation is weather. Systems are climate.

You will have bad days, sick days, errands, family stuff. The plan includes a 30-minute Minimum Viable Day so a bad day costs you 30 minutes of progress, not the whole week. Goggins-style intensity is useful in short bursts; as a daily operating mode it leads to burnout. Part 06 shows how to use both.

THE UNIFYING IDEA

Attention → Trust → Clarity → Action.

Every module in this document trains one of those four. When you're unsure what to work on, ask which of the four is weakest right now, and work on that.

What income is realistic, by path

These ranges come from job postings and vendor guides, not audited surveys. Vendor guides have an interest in making the work look attractive, so treat the top of each range with suspicion.

PATH	TYPICAL STRUCTURE	REPORTED RANGES	TIME TO FIRST MONEY
Remote appointment setter (DM/phone, for coaches, agencies, SaaS)	Commission per booked or attended call, or a small base plus commission	One vendor guide: $500–1,000/mo for beginners, $1,500–3,000 experienced. Example postings: $100 per attended call + 10%; $7/hr base + $15 per qualified set. [17]	2–6 weeks after starting, if leads exist
Remote closer (takes the booked calls and closes)	10–20% of deal value is the most common range	Vendor guide: $2,000–5,000/mo for beginner closers, more for experienced. Usually needs setter or sales experience first. [17]	Month 4–6 for most beginners
Offshore setter benchmark (Philippines: your main competition for US/UK setter work)	Hourly base plus bonuses	Recruiter guides: about $3–4/hr junior, $5–6/hr experienced; a ~$5/hr base plus per-appointment bonuses is described as competitive. [24] [25]	The rate band you'll be compared against
Indian US-process sales (full-time, night shift)	Fixed salary, shift allowance, often a cab	Generic international voice jobs: roughly ₹15–30K/month in ads. An industry guide puts US-focused fresher sales roles at ₹25–45K fixed plus incentives. [26][27]	First salary 4–6 weeks after applying
Salaried inside sales / BDA / SDR (domestic, India)	Fixed salary plus incentives; formal training	Fresher edtech BDA ads: roughly ₹3–6 LPA. SaaS SDR estimates: ₹4–7 LPA fixed. [19]	First salary 4–8 weeks after applying
Content service (short-form editing, scripting, clipping)	Per video or monthly retainer	Highly variable; depends on your portfolio and outreach. Plan for small first clients.	4–8 weeks, needs a portfolio
Your own sci-tech channel	Ads, then sponsors, then products	Ad revenue requires YouTube Partner Program thresholds (see C12). [22] Expect ~0 in 90 days.	Usually 9–24 months

WATCH THE CLOCK: YOU'RE SELLING INTO ANOTHER TIME ZONE

US and UK business hours land in your afternoon and evening. That works, but a fixed sleep window is non-negotiable. Sleep is when the brain consolidates what you practised, and wrecking it to earn faster trades away the long-term learning you said you can't compromise on. Part 04 gives you the exact window (19:00–23:00 IST) that covers both markets and still has you asleep by midnight.

PART 01

Research: people who've already done it

Ten people across content and sales, focused on what they did before it worked. Where figures are self-reported or from secondary sources, that's noted. Full links are in Sources.

Content creators (science, tech, explainers)

WHO	BEFORE IT WORKED	WHAT THEY DID	LESSON FOR YOU
Cleo Abram Huge If True	About five years at Vox as producer and host, including the YouTube Originals series Glad You Asked; reported Emmy nomination in 2020.[1][2]	Left in January 2022 to build one specific show: optimistic stories about technology. Each idea had to pass a checklist: is it visual, is there a good explanation, is the story optimistic? Reported 3.5M subscribers in under 2.5 years with a team of about four.[1][3]	A defined show beats a random channel. Name your show and write your idea filter before video #1. Her fast growth came after a long apprenticeship.
Johnny Harris	About five years at Vox (Vox Borders). His own channel ran as a side project and was under 1M subscribers when he left in 2020.[5]	Went independent when Vox cancelled his show; passed about 7.5M subscribers within five years; later built Newpress, a company for creator-journalists.[5][6]	Build the side channel while being paid to learn. When the exit came, he had skills and a starting audience.
Mark Rober	Nine years as a NASA JPL mechanical engineer (seven on the Curiosity rover), then four years in product design at Apple.[7]	YouTube started as a side project during the NASA years. He quit Apple to go full-time only once the channel was big. Later built CrunchLabs (a product business).[7][8]	Deep expertise first, content as distribution. Your depth source can be a subject you study hard, or the sales knowledge you are about to gain.
Derek Muller Veritasium	PhD at the University of Sydney (2008) on designing effective physics videos.[9]	His research found that clear explanation videos often didn't fix misconceptions and could make students more confident in wrong ideas. Videos that voiced the misconception first, then resolved it, taught better. That became Veritasium's style.[9]	Open with what people wrongly believe. It's both a hook and the most effective teaching method. Use it in videos and in sales.
Ali Abdaal	Medical student, then doctor, while making videos.	Reported ~$2 of AdSense in 2017, ~$16K in 2018, ~$42K in 2019; about 3.5 years of two videos a week before the business took off, then multiple income streams such as courses and sponsors.[10]	Output volume over years, with a day job. His early numbers are what "normal" looks like.
Dhruv Rathee	Channel created in 2013, starting with travel videos; about 100K subscribers by 2017.[11]	Hinglish explainers on news, science and society; now 30M+ subscribers across channels by third-party trackers.[11]	Language is a strategy decision. Hinglish opened a huge, underserved market for him. You chose English: a bigger, more competitive pool, so your show's lens and quality have to do the differentiating.

Sales people (and the sales-to-content bridge)

WHO	BEFORE IT WORKED	WHAT THEY DID	LESSON FOR YOU
Justin Welsh	About 15 years in sales: pharma, then SaaS; SVP of Sales at PatientPop, reported to have helped scale it to $70M+ in recurring revenue.[12]	Started posting sales and leadership lessons on LinkedIn in 2019. Built a newsletter and self-paced courses. Self-reported $4.15M+ revenue in 2024 at about 86% margin, with no employees.[12]	The closest template to your goal. Sales expertise became the content, and content became the business. The order matters: skill → proof → audience → product.
Alex Hormozi	Left a stable job, opened a gym, reportedly went deep into debt. Ran member sales consultations himself.[13]	Credits his skill to sheer volume of sales "reps". Turned his gym playbook into Gym Launch (reported $46.2M deal in 2021). Built the CLOSER framework from thousands of calls and posts content daily.[13][14]	Reps make the skill; results come before audience. His content works because he had results to talk about.
Cole Gordon	By his own account, failed at blogging and SEO first. As a new closer he was worse than his teammates.[15]	Hired coaches, invested in training, stayed consistent until he was the best on his team. Now runs Closers.io, which builds and trains sales teams for online businesses.[15]	Being bad at first is normal. Coaching and call reviews shorten the bad phase.
Jeremy Miner	First sales job: door-to-door home security. Noticed the company scripts weren't working.[16]	Built a question-led method (NEPQ) using behavioural psychology; founded 7th Level in 2018. His income rankings are self-reported.[16]	Questions beat pitching. Let the buyer persuade themselves. Same principle as SPIN and Gap Selling (Part 07).

Two cautionary cases

BYJU'S · PRESSURE SELLING

Investigations by Context (Thomson Reuters Foundation), the BBC and others reported aggressive tactics: repeated cold calls, pitches implying children would fall behind, and families unaware they were signing loans. India's child-rights body summoned the CEO. The company denied mis-selling.[20] Lesson: high-pressure closing can hit short-term targets while destroying customers, careers and the company's name. Learn to close honestly from day one.

"CLOSER ACADEMIES" · PAY TO GET HIRED

Remote closing is a real job, but the space is full of programs that charge thousands for a "certification" and promise income. Reports say the US FTC warned and later shut down one such operator, The Sales Mentor (also marketed as Sales Closer Academy).[18] Verify on ftc.gov before relying on that. Lesson: legitimate employers pay you. Part 11 has a checklist for vetting gigs.

Patterns across all ten

1. A long apprenticeship or deep expertise came first. Five years at Vox, nine at NASA, fifteen in sales, a PhD. Nobody went from zero to scale in 90 days. They did earn during the apprenticeship.
2. They kept a paycheck while building. Rober (NASA, Apple), Harris and Abram (Vox), Abdaal (medicine), Welsh (SaaS executive).
3. A specific, nameable thing. "Huge If True", "Gym Launch", "NEPQ", "the Saturday Solopreneur". Vague doesn't spread.

4. Reps counted in hundreds or thousands. Thousands of sales calls (Hormozi), hundreds of videos (Abdaal).
5. Feedback loops. Coaches (Gordon), research (Muller), editorial teams (Vox), data (MrBeast's team obsessing over click-through and retention).

Not every path is for everyone

ARCHETYPE	FITS YOU IF...	AVOID (FOR NOW) IF...	EXAMPLES
The Apprentice join a team first	You want structure, mentorship and steady pay, and can commit to fixed hours	You need total control of your schedule right now	Abram, Harris
The Rep volume and numbers	You like competition and scoreboards, and can handle rejection (or want to build that)	A "no" ruins your whole day. Start with DM setting, then build up to calls	Gordon, Miner, Hormozi
Expert → Explainer	You love going deep on a subject and explaining it	You need content income within a year	Rober, Muller, Welsh
The Volume Grinder	You love making things and can ship 2–3×/week for 2+ years	You need content to pay soon	Abdaal, Rathee

RECOMMENDATION FOR YOU

Rep + Apprentice now, Expert → Explainer for the long game. Get into a paid sales seat on someone else's team (Apprentice), drive volume (Rep), and run content as a lab where you build depth in science and tech (Expert). By month 12 you can sell, you can explain, and you have proof of both. That is the Justin Welsh foundation, aimed at Cleo Abram's subject area.

PART 02

Your plan, personalised

What you told me, what each answer means, and what it changes. Then the Seat + Lab structure, the ₹35K math and your fallback rules.

Your answers and what they change

YOU SAID	WHAT IT MEANS	WHAT CHANGES IN THE PLAN
India-based; US/UK/foreign clients are the priority	You earn in dollars or pounds and work their business hours, which fall in your afternoon and evening. Your competition is other offshore setters, mainly in the Philippines.	Your Seat is a remote role for a US/UK company. Live work 19:00–23:00 IST. Prefer UK and US East Coast clients; avoid West-Coast-only roles, because their day is your night. See Part 04.
Day holds training, sleep, cooking, eating and leisure you won't cut	No job or college competes for your hours, so about 6 hours a day is genuinely available. A full-time 9-hour job doesn't fit.	The salaried full-time option becomes a fallback only. Your day is three fixed blocks: two silent 90-minute blocks plus an evening live block (Part 06).
At least ₹35K a month	About $400 a month. Reachable from an entry-level offshore role with an hourly base. Not guaranteed by commission-only work.	Prioritise base or per-show pay. A day-60 checkpoint: under ₹20K run-rate means adding a second income line.
English only	A bigger, more competitive market. Every English video also proves to a US/UK employer that you communicate clearly.	Content language is fixed. Each short doubles as a portfolio piece you link in job applications.
"Everything scares me right now"	Normal when starting from zero. Fear shrinks with gradual, repeated exposure and grows with avoidance. It's the main risk to this plan, ahead of skill or time.	A new Part 03: a 12-rung sales ladder and a 6-rung camera ladder. You start text-first (DM setting) and faceless.
3 silent hours of deep focus, no disturbance	One unbroken 3-hour block is your most valuable asset: roughly two full focus cycles back to back.	Part 06: one silent block (content 90 min → 15-min break → sales 90 min). Evenings stay for live client work.
Space and AI (and, quietly, the human body)	Three topics, one audience: curious people who think "wait, is that true?". The question format works across topics.	Your show: weird questions about space, AI and the body, answered in under a minute (Part 08). AI knowledge is also an edge later if you move into tech sales.
"Random brainstorm" = questions like "Does 4D exist?" or "Can you cry from one eye?"	Not a random channel: a proven format. One curious question, one surprising true answer.	It becomes your show's format, and possibly its name (Part 08).
Fear, most to least: camera → calls → rejection → messaging	Messaging is your easiest entry point. Camera is the scariest, but job interviews and Looms need a little of it.	Part 03: content can stay faceless long-term; a separate 6-step "career camera" ladder gets you interview-ready by week 5.
MacBook Air M2, iPhone 16 Plus; internet fair-good; power mostly reliable	Enough to make professional-looking faceless content and to work remotely. The weak links are internet and power during client hours.	No content gear to buy. Before your first shift: a small UPS for your Wi-Fi router, and your iPhone hotspot tested as backup (Part 04).

THE SEAT · SALES
A remote, text-first sales role for a US/UK company: appointment setter, SDR or lead-generation specialist. You start in DMs, where fear is lowest, and move onto calls as you climb the ladder.

THE LAB · CONTENT
English science and tech shorts, three a week, faceless at first. The point is practice at hooks, scripts and delivery, plus public proof that you can explain hard things in English.

THE BRIDGE · MONTHS 4–12
Setter → closer (higher pay per hour), or SDR → account executive in tech sales. Your tech content makes you a stronger hire; your sales skill makes your content persuasive.

Your Seat, ranked

#	OPTION	WHY IT FITS YOU	WATCH OUT FOR
1	Remote appointment setter / SDR for a US or UK company DMs first, calls later	Evening hours fit your day. Text-first suits where your fear is today. Natural path to closer. Paid in USD or GBP.	Commission-only offers; roles needing 3am shifts; anything that asks you to pay to join (Part 11)
2	Short-form editing or scripting for US/UK creators	Asynchronous: no calls, no fixed hours. Uses your content practice. All outreach is text.	You do your own prospecting; income starts small; editors are plentiful, so your sample has to be genuinely good
3	Indian US-process sales job full-time, night shift	Reliable salary and formal training. An industry guide puts US-focused fresher sales roles at ₹25–45K fixed.[26]	9-hour night shifts break your 6-hour budget and your sleep, and content shrinks to weekends. A bridge for 3–6 months, not a destination.

The ₹35K math

₹35,000 is about $400 a month, assuming ₹85–90 per dollar (check the live rate). A 4-hour evening block, five days a week, is about 88 hours a month. Here's what each pay structure needs to reach $400. These are illustrative structures based on posted ranges, not real offers.

PAY STRUCTURE	WHAT YOU'D NEED FOR ~$400 A MONTH	VERDICT
Hourly base only, $4/hr	~100 hours (about 4.5 hrs × 22 working days)	Just about; no upside
Hourly base only, $5/hr	~80 hours (about 3.6 hrs × 22 working days)	Meets the floor
$3/hr base + $10 per showed call	88 hours ($264) + 14 showed calls ($140) ≈ $404	Best for you: a floor plus upside
Per showed call only, $15	~27 showed calls (about 1.2 per working day)	Possible once you're good; risky in month 2
Commission only, e.g. $150 per sale closed from your bookings	~3 closed sales a month	Upside only. Never your floor.

RULE · FLOOR VS UPSIDE
Your floor comes from base or per-show pay. Commission is upside. A commission-only offer doesn't count toward ₹35K until it has actually paid you twice.

RULE · DON'T UNDERCUT
Recruiter guides put Filipino setters at about $3–4/hr junior and $5–6/hr experienced.[24] Ask for a rate inside that band. Pricing yourself far below it reads as low quality, not good value.

THE HOURS, HONESTLY

At entry-level offshore rates, ₹35K needs about 4 paid hours a day. Add your 3-hour silent block and weekdays become ~7 hours. That still fits your budget, because US/UK clients don't work weekends: ~7h × 5 weekdays + ~3h at the weekend ≈ 38 hours a week, the same as 5.4 hours a day. Heavier weekdays, lighter weekends, same total.

Hard fallback rules

DAY 45 · NO SEAT YET

Move half your outreach hours to option 2: short-form editing for US/UK creators. By then you'll have about 17 shorts as a portfolio. Offer one free sample edit to 20 creators; aim to convert 1–2 to paid. Keep applying for seats.

DAY 60 · UNDER ₹20K/MONTH

Add a second income line: a second part-time setter client, or one editing client. Or extend your live block to 5 hours for a month. You said you'd adjust once results show; this is that moment.

DAY 75 · NO INCOME YET

Apply to Indian US-process sales jobs (option 3). Treat it as a paid 3–6-month bridge: salary, supervised reps, a resume line. Keep the Lab alive on weekends, then move back to remote work.

Months 4–12: the skill tree

MONTHS	SALES	CONTENT	PROOF YOU'RE ON TRACK
4–6	Setter → shadow closer calls → take overflow calls. Or SDR hitting quota. Learn qualification frameworks properly (MEDDIC for B2B).	Lock your show's name and style. One long video every two weeks, built from your best short. Face optional; voice and visuals carry it.	Closing your own calls; a long video that holds viewers past 40% of its length
7–9	Full closer seat (commonly 10–20% of deal value), or a junior account executive track. Specialise in one industry, ideally tech, science or edtech.	Newsletter launched. First collaboration. A consistent visual style.	Top-half close rate; 500+ newsletter subscribers
10–12	Senior closer or account executive. Begin mentoring setters, because teaching locks in skill.	First sponsor or paid service from your audience.	Content brings you inbound job or client offers
12+	Choose: (a) a top-earning remote sales career with a personal brand, (b) your own offer sold through your content (the Welsh model), or (c) full-time creator funded by sponsors and products (the Abram model). You'll choose from data, not hope.		Options, not a single bet

Fear → reps: your exposure ladder

"Everything scares me" is the most important thing you told me. The honest version: fear doesn't leave before you act. It leaves because you act, in steps small enough and often enough.

Why this works

Clinical psychology has a well-tested method for fear called graded exposure. You list feared situations from least to most scary, start near the bottom, and repeat each one until the fear drops before moving up.[28][29] Avoidance gives instant relief, and that relief teaches your brain the situation really was dangerous, so the fear stays.[28] Every rung you repeat teaches the opposite. Goggins calls it callusing the mind; therapists call it exposure. Same mechanism, different vocabulary.

THE REFRAME

You don't need confidence to act competently. Scripts, checklists and this ladder carry you while confidence catches up. Confidence is the result of reps, not the entry ticket.

YOUR RANKING, AND WHY IT'S GOOD NEWS

You ranked: camera (most scary) → calls → rejection → messaging (least). The plan already starts with messaging, your least-feared skill, and gets you paid there first. Calls come in weeks 8–10. Camera is only needed for a Loom and a few interviews. Your content can stay faceless for as long as you like.

The rules

1. Rate your fear 0–10 before each attempt (therapists call this a SUDS score) and write it in your daily log.
2. Start on the rung that scores about 3–4. Not 0 (no growth), not 8 (you'll quit).
3. Repeat a rung daily until it scores 2 or less, or feels boring. Then step up one rung.
4. Stay until the fear starts to fall. Leaving at the peak teaches escape.
5. No safety behaviours: no deleting a post after 10 minutes, no rewriting a DM 40 times, no stopping a take halfway.
6. Expect a spike at every new rung. The spike means you picked the right rung, not the wrong career.
7. Bad day? Repeat yesterday's rung instead of skipping. Never drop more than one rung.

Sales ladder: 12 rungs

RUNG	EXPOSURE	ROUGH TIMING
1	Record a 60-second voice memo explaining something you know. Listen back. Delete it.	Week 1
2	Voice calls with the AI buyers in Sales Dojo's Gauntlet. Nobody real hears you.	Week 1
3	Five thoughtful public comments a day on posts by US/UK creators, coaches or founders.	Weeks 1–2
4	Text role-play: a friend plays the buyer on WhatsApp while you run the DM setter script (Part 10).	Week 2
5	Voice role-play with a friend who pushes back with objections. Record it and score it.	Week 2
6	Five genuine DMs a day to strangers in your target market. No pitch: ask one real question about their work.	Week 3
7	A 2-minute Loom intro (screen and voice, face bubble on for the first 10 seconds: K4) sent with five job applications.	Week 3

RUNG	EXPOSURE	ROUGH TIMING
8	A mock sales call with a stranger from an online sales community.	Week 4
9	Video interviews for setter or SDR roles (K6).	Weeks 4–5
10	Real setter DMs on the job, using the team's script and support.	Weeks 6–8
11	Real voice or phone calls with leads.	Weeks 8–10
12	Taking a closer's call with your manager listening.	Months 4–5

Content camera ladder: optional, at your pace

RUNG	EXPOSURE	ROUGH TIMING
C1	Write the script only.	Week 1
C2	Record the voice-over. Don't post it.	Week 1
C3	Post a faceless short: your voice over visuals.	Weeks 1–5
C4	Hands or screen on camera: sketching, pointing, demoing.	When you choose
C5	Your face in the first 3 seconds only, then visuals.	When you choose
C6	A full face-to-camera short.	When you choose

Given your ranking, stay faceless as long as you like. Kurzgesagt grew from Philipp Dettmer's 2013 side project into a studio of about seventy people with no presenter on screen.[31] Zack D. Films reached about 29M subscribers with animated curiosity shorts.[30] Your voice does the work a face would.

Career camera ladder: 6 rungs (needed by week 5)

Your sales career needs a little camera: a Loom intro and video interviews. This short ladder is the only camera work you must do in the first 90 days.

RUNG	EXPOSURE	TIMING
K1	Record a 30-second selfie video alone, watch it once, delete it.	Week 1
K2	A 10-minute video call with a friend, camera on, about anything.	Week 2
K3	A video role-play with a friend: you're the setter, they're the lead.	Week 3
K4	A Loom with screen and voice, your face bubble on for the first 10 seconds.	Week 3
K5	A mock video interview with a stranger from an online sales community.	Week 4
K6	Real video interviews.	Week 5

Rejection, reframed with numbers

In setter work, most messages get no reply. In the illustrative math in Part 09, 900 of 1,000 messages get nothing back. That isn't 900 people judging you; it's the base rate of the job. Your only job per message is to make it good and send it. Track the rate, not the feeling.

WHEN TO GET HELP

Nerves about calls and cameras are normal and fade with reps. If fear is also stopping basic daily things (leaving the house, sleeping, talking to people you know), a few sessions of CBT with a qualified therapist is a smart performance tool, the way a coach is. Exposure is exactly what they'd use, with expert guidance.

PART 04

Working for US/UK clients from India

Time zones, where the jobs are, how to write and sound to a foreign buyer, and how to get paid.

The time-zone map (November 2026 to mid-March 2027)

THEIR CLOCK	UK (GMT)	US EAST (EST)	US WEST (PST)
9:00 am	14:30 IST	19:30 IST	22:30 IST
1:00 pm	18:30 IST	23:30 IST	02:30 IST
5:00 pm	22:30 IST	03:30 IST	06:30 IST

YOUR GOLDEN WINDOW: 19:00–23:00 IST

That's 13:30–17:30 in the UK and 08:30–12:30 on the US East Coast: both markets are awake, and you're asleep by midnight. Turn down roles that need West Coast hours or regular shifts past 1am; the sleep cost will eat your long-term learning. When the US moves clocks forward on 14 March 2027 and the UK on 28 March 2027, the same hours arrive one hour earlier in IST.

Where to find roles

- LinkedIn Jobs, filtered to Remote. Search: appointment setter, SDR, sales development representative, lead generation specialist, inside sales.
- Upwork: "appointment setter" and "lead generation". First contracts are small; treat them as paid proof.
- Startup and remote boards: Wellfound, Remotive, We Work Remotely.
- "Hiring setters" posts on LinkedIn and X from coaches, agencies and founders. Reply with your Loom within the hour.
- Direct outreach: 10 small US/UK agencies or coaching businesses a day, each with a 2-minute Loom on how you'd book calls for them.

Application message · "Hi {first name}, saw you're hiring a setter. I'm based in India and work 1:30–5:30pm UK / 8:30am–12:30pm ET, so your leads get answered while they're warm. I've been training daily on discovery and objection handling, and I make science explainer videos in English (link below). 2-minute intro: {Loom}. Happy to do a paid trial week. Would that be useful?"
Why it works · short; their time zone; a reason to pick you; proof; a low-risk next step.

Sounding natural to US/UK buyers

SWAP THESE PHRASES IN WRITING

INDIAN ENGLISH	WHAT THEY'D SAY
"Do the needful"	"Could you take care of this?"
"Kindly revert"	"Let me know" / "Reply when you can"
"Prepone"	"Move it earlier"
"Dear Sir / Ma'am"	"Hi {first name}"
"PFA the same"	"I've attached it"
"Today itself"	"Today"
"Out of station"	"Travelling" / "Away"

CULTURE, ONE LINE EACH

- US buyers: direct, upbeat, casual, first names immediately; they like specifics and numbers.
- UK buyers: polite, understated, sceptical of hype. Fewer exclamation marks. "Not bad" can be praise; "interesting" can mean no.
- Both: always state times in their zone. Match their spelling (US "color", UK "colour").
- Accent: clarity beats accent. On calls, slow down about 10–15%, finish word endings and pause between ideas. Nobody needs you to sound American; they need to understand you the first time.

Getting paid

1. Get the agreement in writing: rate, hours, per-show or commission rules, payment date, currency, notice period.
2. Receive via Wise, Payoneer or a bank wire. Compare fees; they differ a lot. PayPal is convenient but usually the most expensive.
3. Keep every invoice and the foreign inward remittance record (FIRA/FIRC) your bank or payment provider issues. It's your proof of export income.
4. File an income tax return every year. At ₹4–6 lakh a year you're likely to owe little or nothing under the new tax regime, but confirm with a chartered accountant once. It's a cheap hour.
5. Use a separate bank account for work income from day one.

Week-1 setup checklist

- [ ] Internet backup: your iPhone 16 Plus hotspot. Test it on a 30-minute video call before your first shift. A dropped call with a US lead costs you money.
- [ ] A small UPS for your Wi-Fi router (roughly ₹1,500–3,000). Your MacBook runs on battery during a power cut; the router doesn't.
- [ ] Earphones with a mic (wired is most reliable) and a quiet corner from 19:00 to 23:00. On iPhone and Mac, set Mic Mode to Voice Isolation for calls (Control Centre) to cut background noise.
- [ ] LinkedIn in clear English. Headline idea: "Appointment setter · US & UK hours · I explain space, AI and the human body".
- [ ] World clocks on your phone: London, New York, Los Angeles.
- [ ] Wise or Payoneer account opened and verified (verification can take several days).
- [ ] Scam filter: never pay to get a job, never share an OTP, and ignore WhatsApp or Telegram "task" jobs that pay you to like videos or rate products.

PART 05

The 90-day plan, week by week

Each week has a Sales track, a Content track and a proof milestone. Proof is something you can show someone, not a feeling. Fear rungs (1–12) and career camera rungs (K1–K6) are in Part 03.

DAYS 1–30

Foundations + fear rungs 1–8

- Learn the core sales sequence
- Climb rungs 1–8 + camera K1–K5
- Set up payments, LinkedIn, Loom
- Apply to 60+ US/UK roles
- 3 faceless shorts a week

DAYS 31–60

Get the seat

- Interviews (rung 9)
- Accept base or per-show pay
- Real DMs 19:00–23:00 IST
- Review one thread a day
- Interview-ready on camera (K6)

DAYS 61–90

Reach ₹35K

- Hit your seat's KPIs
- Voice calls with leads (rung 11)
- Fix the leakiest funnel stage
- Case study with real numbers
- Best short remade, better visuals

WEEK	SALES TRACK	CONTENT TRACK	PROOF BY SUNDAY
1	Voice + listening (S1–S2). Fear rungs 1–3 + K1. Dojo Gauntlet daily. Do the week-1 setup checklist (Part 04).	Set up your show (Part 08): pick a name, lock the format, copy the 30-question bank into your notes. Post 2 faceless shorts.	Setup done · 2 shorts · rung 3 reached
2	Psychology + discovery (S3, S7). Rungs 4–5: text, then voice, role-plays with friends. K2: a camera-on call with a friend.	Hooks + packaging (C3–C4). Write out the first lines of 10 outlier videos by hand. 3 shorts.	2 recorded role-plays · 5 shorts
3	Objections + closing (S9–S10). Rungs 6–7 + K3–K4: five no-pitch DMs a day; a video role-play; record your Loom; LinkedIn live. Apply to 30 US/UK roles.	Story + script (C5–C6). 3 shorts. Draft your first 5-minute script.	30 applications · 8 shorts
4	Prospecting (S4–S5). Rung 8 + K5: a mock call and a mock video interview with strangers. 30 more applications plus 10 direct agency pitches a day.	3 shorts plus your first long video (voice-over). Rough is fine.	Interviews booked · 11 shorts + 1 long
5	Rung 9 / K6: video interviews. Accept the best legitimate offer with base or per-show pay (Part 02 math, Part 11 vetting). Learn the offer cold.	3 shorts. First analytics review (C11).	Seat accepted or 60+ applications · 14 shorts
6	Rung 10: first real DMs. Shift 19:00–23:00 IST. Track the funnel (S12) from day one.	3 shorts. Upgrade visuals: one Keynote-animated diagram per short.	First 50 real conversations · 17 shorts
7	Volume. Hit the team's activity target. Review one thread a day with the scorecard. Ask your manager for one piece of feedback.	3 shorts plus the second long video.	150 conversations · 20 shorts + 2 long
8	Find the leak: fix one thing. If your role includes calls, start rung 11.	3 shorts. LinkedIn text posts twice a week. Camera rung C4 only if you want it.	One documented fix · 23 shorts
9	Qualification (S6). Day-60 checkpoint: under ₹20K run-rate → add a second income line (Part 02).	3 shorts. Experiment: misconception hooks vs question hooks.	Run-rate known · 26 shorts

WEEK	SALES TRACK	CONTENT TRACK	PROOF BY SUNDAY
10	Objections in the wild. Log every objection and build your own response bank. Rung 11 regularly.	3 shorts plus the third long video.	Objection bank 15+ · 29 shorts + 3 long
11	Get paid: first full month. Ask a satisfied lead or your manager for a testimonial.	3 shorts. Remake your best short with stronger visuals and a sharper hook.	₹35K run-rate · 32 shorts
12	Case study: one page, starting numbers → changes → results. Ask about shadowing closers.	3 shorts plus the fourth long video. Pick your lane for months 4–6.	Case study · 35 shorts + 4 long
13	Review and rebalance. Compare against the Day-90 scoreboard. Decide the sales/content split for the next 90 days from data. Build v3 of this plan.		v3 plan written

PART 06

Operating system for a real human

You get tired, you have bad days, life interrupts. This system assumes all of that and still moves forward.

Three kinds of day

Full Day

5–6 hrs · the default goal

1. Deep block 1 (90 min): sales skill. Weeks 1–4 learn + drill; week 5+ live calls or DMs.
2. Deep block 2 (90 min): content. Script and film.
3. Shallow (2–3 hrs): outreach volume, applications, editing, posting, call review, reading.
4. 5-min log.

Standard Day

~3 hrs · errands, low energy

1. One deep block (90 min): whichever is more urgent this week (usually sales).
2. 60 min shallow: outreach or editing.
3. 20 min: one Dojo Gauntlet or one short filmed.
4. 5-min log.

Minimum Viable Day

30 min · sick, sad, slammed

1. 10 min sales: one Dojo call, or ten objection flashcards.
2. 10 min content: write five hooks, or film one take.
3. 5 min: read your Cookie Jar (below).
4. 5-min log. Done. No guilt.

The two rules: never zero, never miss twice. A Minimum Viable Day counts. Two skipped days in a row is how plans die, so after any miss, the next day is at least Standard. (The "never miss twice" rule is James Clear's, from Atomic Habits.)

Your day in IST (Monday–Friday, November to March)

Your 3 silent hours are one unbroken block here (10:30–13:45, with a 15-minute break in the middle). If your quiet time falls elsewhere, move the block, but keep the evening for live client work.

TIME (IST)	WEEKS 1–5: LEARNING + APPLYING	WEEKS 6–12: IN THE SEAT
~08:00	Wake (same time daily) · 10 minutes of outdoor light · no phone for 30 minutes
Morning	Training, cooking, breakfast: your slot, uncuttable. Move the blocks below around it if needed, but keep all three.
10:30–12:00	Silent block, part 1: content. Research, script, voice-over, visuals.
12:00–12:15	Break: walk, water, no phone
12:15–13:45	Silent block, part 2: sales module + today's fear rung	Silent block, part 2: review yesterday's conversations (45 min), then one module or Dojo drill (45 min)
13:45–16:00	Lunch and leisure (uncuttable) · last caffeine by 14:00
16:00–19:00	Dinner prep, early dinner, walk, 10–20 min NSDR, leisure
19:00–22:00/23:00	Live block (3h): applications, outreach, role-plays, Looms. UK afternoon / US East morning.	Setter shift 19:00–23:00: UK 13:30–17:30 / US East 08:30–12:30
23:00–00:00	Shutdown: 5-minute log, plan tomorrow's first task, screens down
00:00–08:00	Sleep, 8 hours. Non-negotiable.
Weekends	US/UK clients are off. Saturday: batch 2 shorts (2h). Sunday: 45-minute review, then off. Weekly total: ~33h in weeks 1–5, ~38h in the seat.

The Huberman layer: biology that makes learning stick

Ranked by strength of evidence. The first three are well supported across sleep and exercise science. The rest are useful, lower-cost habits with weaker evidence; use them if they help you, drop them if they don't.

HABIT	WHAT TO DO	WHY IT MATTERS FOR YOU
1 · Regular sleep window	Same wake time (±30 min) every day, 7–9 hrs in bed. Protect it even on shift work.	Memory consolidation happens in sleep. This is your "long-term learning" insurance.
2 · Daily movement	20–30 min walk minimum; 3×/week harder exercise. Take practice calls or listen to recordings while walking.	Mood, focus, stress resilience on rejection-heavy days.
3 · Morning light	A few minutes outdoors soon after waking, longer on cloudy days; not through a window.	Anchors your body clock, helps alertness earlier and sleep later.
4 · ~90-minute focus blocks	Work in blocks of about 90 minutes; expect about an hour of real focus inside each. Huberman discusses this in his AMA on ultradian cycles.[23]	Matches your two deep blocks.
5 · Delay caffeine	First caffeine 60–90 min after waking; none within 8–10 hrs of bed.	Steadier afternoon energy, better sleep.
6 · NSDR / Yoga Nidra	10–20 min guided rest after lunch.	Resets for deep block 2 or a shift.

The Goggins layer: for the days you don't want to

ACCOUNTABILITY MIRROR

Write this week's three targets on sticky notes on your mirror. Look at them every morning. No hiding from the numbers.

COOKIE JAR

A running list of every hard thing you've already done: first cold DM, first rejection survived, first video posted. On bad days, read it. Evidence beats pep talks.

CALLUS THE MIND

Do the rep you dread first: the cold call, the camera take, the follow-up after a "no". Avoidance grows; exposure shrinks it.

THE 40% RULE, WITH A GUARDRAIL

Goggins says when you think you're done, you're at 40%. Use it inside a session ("five more dials"). Don't use it to skip sleep or work through illness. That's how you lose weeks.

THE RATIONAL BLEND

Goggins for the first 20 minutes, Huberman for the rest of the day. Use intensity to start the hard thing. Use recovery science to keep doing it for 12 months.

When life interrupts: the disruption playbook

SITUATION	DO THIS	DON'T DO THIS
Low mood, no energy	Minimum Viable Day. 10-minute walk outside first. Read the Cookie Jar.	Scroll for two hours and then call the day a write-off
Urgent errand, half day lost	Standard Day: protect one deep block, cut shallow work.	Push the deep block "to tonight"

SITUATION	DO THIS	DON'T DO THIS
Sick	Rest. Optionally listen to one call recording. Log "sick". Resume with a Standard Day.	Use the 40% rule on your immune system
Travel or family event (2–5 days)	"Phone-only mode": listen to recordings, write hooks in notes, reply to leads. Batch-film two extra shorts the week before if you can see it coming.	Drop everything, then try to restart cold
Lost a whole week	Restart with three Standard Days, then Full. Pick up the plan where you are, not where the calendar says.	Try to "make up" hours with 12-hour days (leads to burnout and another lost week)
Brutal rejection day	Review one call honestly, write one lesson, then stop. Rejection is data about the offer, timing or your delivery, not a verdict on you.	Replay it for hours, or quit the role in the moment
A video flops	Check the retention graph: where did people leave? Fix that one thing in the next video.	Delete it, change niche, or buy a new camera

The Sunday review (45 minutes)

- [ ] Fill in the weekly scorecard (Part 10): activity numbers, conversion rates, content metrics, days completed by type.
- [ ] Find the single weakest number. Write one change to test this week.
- [ ] Re-read last week's log. What surprised you?
- [ ] Update the Accountability Mirror: three targets for next week.
- [ ] Add 2–3 entries to the Cookie Jar.
- [ ] Plan the week: which days are Full and which are Standard, given what you know is coming.
- [ ] Batch: write next week's three short scripts.

PART 07

Sales curriculum: from tone to close

Thirteen modules, from smallest to biggest. Each has: what it is, what to do, a drill, and the most common mistake. Sales Dojo already contains lessons from most of the books cited here. Use it to drill each module.

S1 Voice and tonality

WHAT

On a call your voice decides whether your words are believed. You'll often hear that communication is "7% words, 38% tone, 55% body language". That's a misreading of Albert Mehrabian's 1960s experiments, which looked at single words expressing feelings. Mehrabian himself says it doesn't apply to communication in general. Words matter. Tone decides whether they land.

DO

- Three voices (Chris Voss): positive/playful as your default; the calm, slow late-night FM DJ voice with a downward inflection for key points, limits and price; assertive almost never, because it creates pushback.
- Pace: slow down on what matters. Nervous people speed up; confident people pause.
- Pause 1–2 seconds after asking a question and after saying a price. Let the silence work.
- Downward inflection on statements signals certainty. Rising tone on a statement ("We help coaches?") sounds unsure.
- Smile while talking: it's audible. Cut fillers: um, like, basically, honestly, just.

DRILL

Daily: Dojo Articulation Warm-up (5 min). Record a 60-second explanation, listen at 1×, note one fix, re-record.

MISTAKE

Copying a "salesy" voice. Aim for you, calm and clear, not a radio announcer.

S2 Language and listening

WHAT

Tactical empathy (Voss): make the other person feel understood, and they open up and trust you.

DO

- Mirror: repeat the last 1–3 key words as a question. "...we've tried agencies before." → "Tried agencies before?" Then wait.
- Label: "It sounds like...", "It seems like...", "It feels like...". Name the emotion or the situation.
- Calibrated questions (How/What): "What's the biggest challenge there?" "How would you want this to work?"
- Accusation audit: say their objections first. "You probably think this is another sales pitch..."
- Summarise until they say "that's right", not "you're right". "That's right" means they feel understood.
- One question at a time. Aim to talk less than half the call.

DRILL

In normal conversations, label three emotions a day. Dojo: Never Split the Difference lessons.

MISTAKE

Asking a question, then answering it yourself because the silence felt awkward.

S3 Buyer psychology, used ethically

WHAT People don't buy products; they buy a change from their current state to a better one (Keenan, Gap Selling). They act when staying the same costs more than changing.

DO

- Hormozi's value equation ($100M Offers): Value = (Dream outcome × Perceived likelihood of achieving it) ÷ (Time delay × Effort and sacrifice). To raise value, increase the top or shrink the bottom.
- Cialdini's seven principles (Influence): reciprocity, commitment and consistency, social proof, authority, liking, scarcity, unity. Use only true versions: real testimonials, real deadlines, real expertise.
- Loss framing: help them see the honest cost of doing nothing, in their own numbers.

DRILL Pick any product you own. Write its value equation. Which of the four terms would you improve first?

MISTAKE Fake scarcity ("only 2 spots left!"). It works once, then trust is gone for good.

S4 Prospecting: finding people to talk to

WHAT Jeb Blount's core point (Fanatical Prospecting): an empty pipeline is the real killer. Most sales failures are activity failures.

DO

- Ideal customer profile (ICP): who exactly, what pain, where they spend time, which events trigger buying (new funding, a new hire, a launch, a complaint post).
- The 30-day rule: prospecting you do this month pays off over the next 90 days. Never stop, even when busy.
- Golden hours: prospect when buyers can be reached; do admin and research outside those hours.
- Balanced prospecting: mix phone, email, DM, referrals and content. Don't rely on one channel.
- Personalise with one specific line. Cap research at about 2 minutes per prospect.

DRILL Dojo Company X-Ray: one company in 5 minutes. Who buys, why, what's changing.

MISTAKE Researching for 20 minutes, then sending a generic message anyway.

S5 Openers: call, DM and email

CALL Blount's five steps: get attention (use their name), identify yourself, give the reason for the call, a "because" statement, then ask directly for the meeting. Alternative permission opener: "I know I'm calling out of the blue. Can I take 30 seconds to tell you why, and you tell me if it's worth continuing?"

DM Context + a genuine curiosity question. No pitch in the first message. The goal of message 1 is message 2.

EMAIL A 2–4 word subject. Three to five sentences: trigger → problem → proof → one ask. Readable on a phone in ten seconds.

MISTAKE "Hope you're doing well! I wanted to reach out to..." Every word before the point costs you attention.

S6 Qualifying: who is worth your time

B2C / HIGH-TICKET	Need (a real problem) · Urgency (why now?) · Ability (can they invest without harming themselves?) · Authority (do they decide, or is a spouse or parent involved?) · Coachability (will they actually do the work?).
B2B	Start with BANT (Budget, Authority, Need, Timing). Graduate to MEDDIC: Metrics, Economic buyer, Decision criteria, Decision process, Identify pain, Champion.
MINDSET	Disqualifying is a skill, not a failure. A clear "this isn't for you" protects your time and the buyer's money, and it makes you more credible with the ones who are a fit.

S7 Discovery: where deals are actually won

SPIN	From Neil Rackham's research on thousands of sales calls: Situation questions (use sparingly, they bore buyers) → Problem → Implication (what does this problem cause?) → Need-payoff (what would solving it be worth?). Implication and need-payoff questions do the heavy lifting in larger sales.
GAP	Current state (facts, pain, root cause, impact in numbers) → future state (what they want) → the gap between them is the value. The bigger and clearer the gap, the easier the close.
DO	Spend most of the call here. Get the root cause ("Why do you think that keeps happening?") and quantify it ("Roughly what does that cost you a month?"). Question bank in Part 10.
MISTAKE	Pitching the moment you hear a problem. Hold your solution until you understand the whole gap.

S8 Presenting the offer

DO

- Recap in their words first: "You said X, Y and Z. Did I get that right?"
- Present only the parts that close their gap. Keenan: demo only what closes the gap.
- Benefits beat features: connect each part to a need they stated (Rackham).
- Teach something (from The Challenger Sale): an insight about their problem they didn't have. Your sci-tech research habit is an edge here.
- Say the price plainly, then stop talking.

MISTAKE — Feature dumping: listing everything the product does "just in case".

S9 Objections

SEQUENCE	Pause → Label → Clarify/isolate → Respond → Confirm. "It sounds like price is the concern. Aside from price, is this the right solution for you?" → respond with options, evidence or a reframe → "Does that address it?"
PREVENT	Most objections are discovery failures (Rackham). If you hear "too expensive", the gap wasn't big or clear enough. Fix discovery, not your rebuttal.
DRILL	Dojo Objection Blitz daily in weeks 3–4. Full response table in Part 10.
MISTAKE	Arguing. You can win the argument and lose the sale. Respond with questions.

S10 Closing

CLOSER	Hormozi's sequence:[14] Clarify why they're here → Label the problem → Overview past pain (what they've tried and why it failed) → Sell the vacation (the outcome, not the flight) → Explain away concerns → Reinforce the decision after they buy.
THE ASK	Direct, simple, then silence. "Based on what you've told me, X, Y and Z, I think this is a fit. Want to get started?" Then say nothing until they answer.
ADVANCE	Rackham: every call ends with an advance (a concrete next step with a date), not a continuation ("let's stay in touch").
MISTAKE	Never actually asking. Many beginners present beautifully, then wait for the buyer to volunteer.

S11 Follow-up and a simple CRM

DO

- Many deals aren't decided on the first call. Use a follow-up cadence (Part 10): recap → value → check-in → polite close-the-file.
- A CRM can be a Google Sheet. Columns: name · source · stage · last touch · next step + date · notes.
- Rule: no lead without a next date.

S12 Metrics and self-coaching

SETTER	Touches → replies → conversations → qualified → booked → showed. Watch the reply rate and the show rate.
CLOSER	Show rate · close rate · cash collected per call · refund rate. A high close rate with high refunds means you're overselling.
B2B	Activities → meetings → opportunities → won. Pipeline coverage: pipeline value relative to quota.
REVIEW	Score one call a day (Part 10). Record only with consent, and follow local laws on call recording. Weekly: find the leakiest stage and fix one thing.

S13 Ethics and reputation

RULES

- Never lie about results, scarcity or what's included.
- Don't sell to people who can't afford it or won't benefit. Never push credit or loans on someone who's stretched (the BYJU'S lesson).
- The test: would you sell this, at this price, to your own family member in this situation?

WHY

Your reputation compounds just like content. Honest closers get referrals, testimonials and better jobs. Pushy ones get refunds, chargebacks and bad reviews.

PART 08

Content curriculum: from idea to audience

Twelve modules for science and tech explainers. The goal for the first 90 days is skill and portfolio, not follower count.

Your show: weird questions about space, AI and the human body

What you called "random brainstorm" is a proven format: one question people secretly wonder about, one surprising and true answer, in under a minute. The topics can vary; the format and the promise must not. Vsauce has worked this way since 2010, with Michael Stevens building the channel on "what if" and "why" questions across any topic.[32] Zack D. Films does it today with faceless, animated curiosity shorts: about 29M subscribers by vidIQ's October 2026 count, from a 2021 start.[30]

YOUR FORMAT PROMISE

"A question you've wondered about. An answer you didn't expect. Under 60 seconds, and it's true."

Every short: the question on screen in the first second, a misconception or surprise by second 3, one honest caveat before the end.

NAME IDEAS (YOU DECIDE)

- Random Brainstorm: your own phrase and memorable, but "random" promises nothing specific.
- 2AM Questions: names the feeling of lying awake wondering.
- Is That Even Possible?: names the promise.
- Weird Question Lab: playful, and fits all three topics.

Check the handle is free on YouTube, Instagram and TikTok. Pick in week 1; you can rename later.

30-question starter bank

These are questions, not answers. Research each from two credible sources before scripting; some answers are more nuanced than the question suggests.

SPACE	AI	HUMAN BODY
Does 4D exist?	Does AI actually understand anything?	Can we control our emotions fully?
Why is space dark if there are billions of stars?	Why does AI make things up?	Can you cry from only one eye?
What would happen if you fell into a black hole?	How does an AI "see" a photo?	Why is yawning contagious?
Is there a centre of the universe?	Can AI dream?	Why can't you tickle yourself?
How cold is space, really?	Could AI ever be conscious, and how would we know?	What happens to your brain if you don't sleep?
Could you survive a minute in space without a suit?	Why does AI need so much electricity?	Why do we get goosebumps?
Why are planets round but asteroids lumpy?	How does your phone recognise your face in the dark?	Why do fingers wrinkle in water?
Does time pass differently on Mars?	Why can AI write essays but miscount letters in a word?	Can you actually die of a broken heart?
What's beyond the observable universe?	What is a neural network, in plain English?	Why does time feel faster as you get older?

SPACE	AI	HUMAN BODY
Could we ever hear sound in space?	Can AI predict the weather better than meteorologists?	How long can you survive without water?

Worked example: "Does 4D exist?" (about 55 seconds)

TIME	VOICE-OVER	VISUALS (FACELESS)
0–3s	Hook: "You live in four dimensions right now. You just can't point at the fourth one."	Text on screen: "Does 4D exist?" Your hand pointing up, sideways, forward.
3–12s	And: "Up-down, left-right, forward-back: three directions in space. Einstein's relativity adds time as a fourth, woven together with space into spacetime."	Three arrows appear one by one; a clock slides in and merges with them.
12–35s	But: "When people ask about 4D, they usually mean a fourth direction in space. Maths handles that easily. A 4D cube, the tesseract, has 16 corners and 32 edges. We just can't picture it, the same way a flat 2D creature couldn't picture a cube."	Square → cube → rotating tesseract projection ("cube inside a cube"), built in Keynote or taken from a free animation.
35–50s	Therefore: "So does a fourth space dimension physically exist? Some theories, like string theory, need extra dimensions curled up too small to notice. So far, experiments haven't found any evidence for them."	A zoom into a tiny curled-up tube; text: "No evidence yet."
50–55s	Payoff + loop: "4D with time: yes, you're in it. 4D in space: maybe, unproven. Part two: what a 4D being would see when it looks at you."	Split screen: ✓ spacetime / ? extra dimension. End card: "Part 2".

FACELESS PRODUCTION ON YOUR MAC + IPHONE

- Voice: record on the iPhone in a quiet room with soft furnishings (curtains, bed, cupboard). Your voice is your face.
- Visuals: Keynote's Magic Move for simple animated diagrams; screen recordings (Shift-Cmd-5); NASA imagery (check NASA's media-use guidelines, and never use their logo); free stock from Pexels or Pixabay; your own iPhone footage of hands, objects and sky.
- Edit: CapCut for shorts; DaVinci Resolve (free, runs on the M2) for long-form.
- Later: Blender (free) for 3D, the Zack D. Films route, once you have 30 shorts and know what works.

TWO RULES THAT PROTECT THE CHANNEL

- Body questions border on health claims. Use the NHS, Mayo Clinic or peer-reviewed reviews as sources. Never give medical advice; add "see a doctor if..." where it applies.
- Use AI as an assistant, not the author. Since July 2025, YouTube's "inauthentic content" rule has blocked money from mass-produced, repetitive videos, however they're made.[33] Faceless is allowed; template farming isn't. Write your own scripts, use your own voice, and label realistic AI-generated visuals when YouTube asks you to.

C1 Define your show (positioning)

WHAT Cleo Abram's growth is attributed to a specific show with a defined brand (optimism about technology) and an idea checklist: is it genuinely visual, is there a good explanation, is the story optimistic?[3]

DO

- One line: "[Topic] for [audience] through [lens]." Examples: "The physics hiding in everyday things." "New tech explained in 60 seconds, with one honest caveat." "How the machines around you actually work." Yours: "Weird questions about space, AI and the human body, answered in 60 seconds."
- Write your own 3-question idea filter. Every idea must pass all three.
- Language: English (decided). A bigger, more competitive market, so the show's lens and quality must differentiate you. Bonus: every English video is proof of communication for US/UK employers.

MISTAKE Random topics with no consistent format. Topics can vary (Vsauce does); the format and promise can't.

C2 Idea sourcing and research

SOURCES University press releases (EurekAlert!), Nature and Science news, Quanta Magazine, company engineering blogs, product launches, Our World in Data, questions on Reddit and in your comments, and outlier videos in your niche (videos doing 3× or more their channel's average).

DO

- Keep an idea bank of 100 or more. Score each 1–5 on curiosity, how visual it is, and your ability to explain it.
- Accuracy rule: two credible sources per claim. Label speculation clearly. "Huge if true" is itself a caveat format.
- If you get something wrong, correct it publicly. In science content, trust is the product.

C3 Packaging: title and thumbnail first

WHAT MrBeast's leaked production guide (2024) reportedly has the team start with the title and thumbnail, and track three core metrics: click-through rate, average view duration, average percentage viewed.[21]

DO

- Write 10 titles for each long video. Pick the clearest promise, not the cleverest phrase.
- Thumbnail: one subject, at most 1–3 words, high contrast, readable at phone size.
- For shorts, the first frame and on-screen text are the packaging.
- The video must deliver what the title promised, fast. Misleading packaging kills retention.

C4 Hooks

WINDOW The first 1–3 seconds for shorts. The first 30–60 seconds for long-form, which the MrBeast guide reportedly calls the most important minute because that's when most viewers leave.[21]

TYPES

- Misconception: "You were taught X. It's wrong." This works as a hook and as teaching (Derek Muller's research).[9]
- Stakes: "This could make every battery on Earth obsolete."
- Visual surprise: show the weird thing first, explain after.
- Specific number: "This chip does 1,000 trillion operations a second."
- Tension question: "Why don't planes fly in a straight line?"

DRILL Write 10 hooks a day for two weeks (5 minutes). Dojo Ad & Copy Lab trains the same skill.

C5 Story structure

ABT Scientist-turned-filmmaker Randy Olson's template: "And... But... Therefore...". Setup, then problem, then consequence. The South Park creators make the same point: scenes should connect with "but" and "therefore", never "and then".

DO

- Open a loop early, close it late. Ask the question at second 3, answer it at second 50.
- Include people: a scientist, a team, a failure. Stories are about someone.
- One analogy per concept, and check that it doesn't teach something false.
- End with "so what": what it means for the viewer, plus the honest caveat.

C6 Scriptwriting for the ear

STEPS Research notes → one-sentence thesis → beat outline (ABT) → draft → read aloud → cut 20–30% → add a visuals column (a two-column script: words | what's on screen).

FEYNMAN Explain the topic to an imaginary 12-year-old. Wherever you stumble, you don't understand it yet. Go back and research.

STYLE Short sentences. One idea per sentence. Concrete beats abstract. Write how you talk.

C7 On-camera delivery

DO

- Everything in S1 (voice) applies: one skill, two uses.
- Energy about 20% above normal conversation, because the camera flattens you. Look into the lens.
- Record in short chunks. Do the first 3 seconds five times and keep the best.
- Camera is your top fear, so your content stays faceless and your voice carries it. That makes S1 (voice) count double. Face on camera is optional (Part 03).

C8 Minimum viable production kit

KIT You already have it: iPhone 16 Plus for voice-over and B-roll, MacBook Air M2 for editing. Audio matters more than video: record in a quiet, soft-furnished room. Editing: CapCut to start, DaVinci Resolve (free) later. Visuals: Keynote diagrams, screen recordings, NASA imagery, free stock, your own iPhone footage.

RULE No new gear until 30 videos are posted. Gear is the most comfortable form of procrastination.

C9 Editing for retention

DO Cut every pause and breath. In shorts, change the visual every few seconds. Use captions (many people watch muted). On-screen text reinforces the key number. Keep sound design subtle. Before exporting, watch once at full speed and note anywhere you'd swipe away, then fix it.

C10 Platforms and cadence

DAYS 1–90 YouTube Shorts, Instagram Reels, plus TikTok where available: 3 a week, the same video cross-posted. These are fast feedback reps. One long video (5–10 min) every 2–3 weeks, built from your best short.

BRIDGE From week 8, post text versions on LinkedIn or X twice a week. LinkedIn is where Justin Welsh built his business, and where tech sales hiring managers spend time.[12]

LATER A newsletter (an audience you own, not rented from an algorithm) from around month 6.

C11 Analytics and iteration

METRICS

- Long-form: click-through rate, average view duration, average percentage viewed, and the retention curve (where exactly people leave).
- Shorts: viewed vs. swiped away, average percentage viewed, shares and saves (strongest signal that a video was valuable), comments.

METHOD Change one variable per experiment: hook type, length, topic, thumbnail style. Monthly: compare your top 3 and bottom 3 and write down why you think they differ.

MISTAKE Watching subscriber count daily. It's a lagging number. Retention and shares are leading numbers.

C12 Monetisation ladder (realistic order)

ORDER

1. Indirect: content makes you a stronger sales hire or wins you clients. This comes first and is usually the biggest early.
2. Services: editing or scripting for others (Option C).
3. Sponsorships: need a consistent, engaged audience in a clear niche.
4. Ad revenue: needs YouTube Partner Program eligibility. Third-party guides describe a lower tier around 500 subscribers (fan funding) and full ad revenue at 1,000 subscribers plus 4,000 public watch hours in 12 months, or a Shorts-views route.[22] Check the official YouTube Help page; rules change.
5. Own products: courses, newsletters, communities. Highest margin, needs the most trust (the Welsh and Abdaal models).

THE 2-HOUR CONTENT SPRINT (ONE DEEP BLOCK)

1. 0:00–0:20 · pick an idea from the bank, read two sources, write a one-sentence thesis.
2. 0:20–0:45 · write five hooks, pick one, outline with ABT.
3. 0:45–1:05 · script in two columns (words | visuals), read aloud, cut 25%.
4. 1:05–1:30 · film: hook ×5 takes, then the body in chunks.
5. 1:30–2:00 · rough edit plus captions. Polish and post in shallow time.

Publish the B+ version. Your first 30 videos are tuition. Perfectionism at this stage is fear in disguise. Ship it, then fix one thing in the next video.

PART 09

Funnels: how it all connects

A funnel is the path from a stranger to a paying customer to a referral. Every job in sales and content lives on one stage of it. Know which stage you own and which number measures you.

Content, outbound, ads. Metric: reach, views, outbound touches. YOU, CREATOR

Profile, pinned video, free resource. Metric: profile visits, follows, replies.

DM, email, call. Metric: conversations started. SETTER

Need, urgency, ability, authority. Metric: % qualified. SETTER

Booked, confirmed, reminded. Metric: booked, show rate. SETTER

SPIN or Gap, then a tailored offer. Metric: offers made. CLOSER / AE

The ask, objections, payment. Metric: close rate, cash collected. CLOSER / AE

Reinforce the decision, deliver results. Metric: refund and churn rate.

Testimonials, case studies, referrals. These feed back into stage 1. CONTENT AGAIN

Three funnels you'll meet

A · CREATOR / COACH (HIGH-TICKET)

Short-form → long-form → free resource → email list → application form → setter (DM or call) → closer call → onboarding. This is where most remote setter and closer jobs are.

B · B2B TECH SALES

Target account list → multichannel sequence (call, email, LinkedIn) by an SDR → discovery → demo → proposal → negotiation → close by an AE → expansion. The Bridge career path.

C · YOUR CONTENT SERVICE

Your shorts as portfolio → shortlist 50 creators → personalised DM with a free sample (re-edit one of their clips) → short call → paid trial → monthly retainer → referrals.

Why small improvements compound: illustrative math

The numbers below are assumptions for illustration, not benchmarks. Your real numbers come from your own tracking.

STAGE	BASELINE RATE	BASELINE RESULT	+20% BETTER AT EACH STAGE	RESULT
Outreach touches	—	1,000	—	1,000
Replies	10%	100	12%	120
Booked	30%	30	36%	43
Showed	70%	21	84%	36
Closed	20%	≈ 4 sales	24%	≈ 9 sales

THE INSIGHT

Getting 20% better at four stages roughly doubles the output (1.2 × 1.2 × 1.2 × 1.2 ≈ 2.07), with no extra effort at the top of the funnel. That's why the weekly "find the leak, fix one thing" habit beats simply working more hours.

Show-rate checklist (setters)

- [ ] Book the call while they're still talking to you. Offer two specific times; don't just send a link and hope.
- [ ] Confirm immediately with the time in their time zone.
- [ ] Send a short value piece before the call (a 2-minute video or a case study) so they arrive warmer.
- [ ] Remind them 24 hours and 1 hour before, by personal message, not only automated email.
- [ ] If they no-show, follow up within 10 minutes, kindly. Rebook once.

Map yourself onto the funnel

WHEN	STAGES YOU OWN	YOUR KEY NUMBER
Days 1–30	1 (content), 3 (practice conversations)	Shorts posted, Dojo score, role-plays done
Days 31–90	3–5 (setter or SDR) · or 1–7 (Option C, solo)	Show rate, or booked meetings
Months 4–9	6–7 (closer or AE) · 1–2 (content growing)	Close rate, cash collected
Months 10+	All of them, if you build your own offer	Revenue per hour, referral rate

PART 10

Scripts, templates & scorecards

Starting points, not magic words. Read them aloud until they sound like you, then adapt. A script you sound natural with beats a "perfect" one you recite.

1 · DM setter flow (inbound: someone engaged with content)

Open · "Hey {name}, saw you commented on {post}. What made that one hit home for you?"
Connect · "Got it. Where are you at with {topic} right now?"
Pain · "How long has it been like that?" · "What have you tried so far?" · "What happened with that?"
Future · "If this was solved 90 days from now, what would be different for you?"
Why now · "What made you start looking at this now rather than six months ago?"
Qualify · "If it turned out to be a good fit, are you in a position to invest in solving this? No pressure either way, I just don't want to waste your time."
Book · "It might make sense to hop on a call with {closer}. They'll map out a plan, and it's useful either way. Tuesday 7pm or Wednesday 6pm, which is better?"
Confirm · time in their time zone + a 2-minute value video + reminders at 24h and 1h.

2 · Cold call opener (B2B)

Blount 5-step · "Hi {name}, this is {you} from {company}. The reason I'm calling is to set up a time to talk about {specific problem}. I'm calling because we've been helping {similar companies} {result}. How about Thursday at 2?"
Permission version · "Hi {name}, {you} here. I know I'm calling out of the blue. Can I take 30 seconds to tell you why, and you tell me if it's worth continuing?"
Brush-off ledge · "Totally fair. Most people I call say that, until they see {result}. Would a quick 15 minutes on Thursday be crazy?"

3 · Cold email

Subject · {2–4 words, e.g. "{company}'s onboarding"}
Body · "{Name}, saw {trigger: new hire / funding / launch / post}. Teams at that stage often hit {problem}. We helped {similar company} {specific result}. Worth a 15-minute look next week?"
Rules · readable on a phone in 10 seconds, one ask, no attachments in the first email.

4 · Content-service outreach (Option C)

Message 1 · "Hey {name}, loved your video on {topic}, especially {specific moment}. I edit short-form sci-tech explainers. I cut a 40-second short from it as an experiment, here: {link}. Free to use either way."
If they reply · "Glad you liked it! How are you handling shorts right now? ... Would it help to have 3 a week done like this? Happy to do a paid trial week to see if it's a fit."

5 · Discovery question bank

TYPE	QUESTIONS
Situation (few)	"Walk me through how you handle {X} today." · "Who's involved in that?"
Problem	"What's not working about that?" · "What's the hardest part?" · "What do you wish was different?"
Implication	"What happens if that doesn't change in the next six months?" · "How does that affect {revenue / time / team / family}?"
Root cause	"Why do you think that keeps happening?" · "What have you tried, and why didn't it stick?"

TYPE	QUESTIONS
Quantify	"Roughly what does that cost you a month, in money or hours?"
Need-payoff	"If you fixed that, what would it do for you?" · "What would that be worth?"
Decision	"Who else weighs in on a decision like this?" · "How have you made decisions like this before?" · "What would make this a clear yes?"
Voss calibrated	"What about this is important to you?" · "How am I supposed to do that?" · "What's the biggest challenge you face?"

6 · Objection responses

THEY SAY	OFTEN MEANS	RESPOND WITH
"It's too expensive."	Value not established, or a genuine budget limit	"Totally fair. Compared to what?" → isolate: "Price aside, is this the right solution for you?" Yes → discuss options or a payment plan. No → go back to the gap. Can't afford it → disqualify kindly.
"I need to think about it."	One unresolved concern	"Makes sense. Usually when someone says that, there's one specific piece they're unsure about. What's yours?"
"I need to ask my spouse / partner / boss."	A real stakeholder, or a polite exit	"Of course. If they were here, what do you think they'd ask?" → offer a joint call. "What would you recommend to them?"
"Send me some info."	A brush-off	"Happy to. So I send the right thing, what specifically would you be looking for?" → book a 10-minute follow-up to go through it.
"Not the right time."	Low priority, or an unclear cost of waiting	"What would need to change for it to be the right time?" · "What happens if you wait six months?"
"I've tried something like this before."	Trust gap	"What happened? … What would need to be different this time for it to work?"
"We already use X." (B2B)	Status quo is comfortable	"Great. What do you like about it? If you could change one thing, what would it be?"

Ethics rule: if the honest answer is "it's not a fit", say so. You'll lose this sale and gain a reputation.

7 · Closing and follow-up lines

Direct close · "Based on what you told me, {X}, {Y}, {Z}, I think this is a fit. Want to get started?" (then silence)
B2B advance · "What's the next step on your side to make a decision, and can we put a date on it?"
Reinforce · "Great decision. Here's exactly what happens next: {step 1}, {step 2}. You'll hear from {name} by {time}."
Follow-up D1 · recap of their goals + the agreed next step.
Follow-up D3 · one useful thing (an article, a case study, an answer to a question they raised).
Follow-up D7 · "Any new questions since we spoke?"
Follow-up D14 · "Haven't heard back, so I'll assume the timing isn't right. Should I close your file for now?" (often gets the most replies)

8 · Short-form script template (45–60 seconds)

TIME	BEAT	EXAMPLE: "WHY IS THE SKY BLUE?"
0–3s	Hook (misconception or stakes)	"The sky isn't blue because it reflects the ocean. And it isn't really blue for the reason you think."
3–10s	Context (And)	"Sunlight looks white, but it's every colour mixed together…"

TIME	BEAT	EXAMPLE: "WHY IS THE SKY BLUE?"
10–40s	Explanation (But / Therefore)	"But when it hits air molecules, shorter wavelengths scatter far more... therefore blue light comes at you from every direction."
40–55s	Payoff + caveat	"So why not violet? Violet scatters even more, but the Sun gives off less of it and your eyes are less sensitive to it."
55–60s	Loop / CTA	"So why are sunsets red? That's part two."

9 · Long-form outline (8–15 minutes)

1. Cold open (0:00–0:45): the most surprising visual or claim, plus the promise of the video.
2. Stakes: why this matters to the viewer's life or future.
3. Act 1 · how it works: the simplest correct explanation, with one strong analogy.
4. Act 2 · the twist: the problem, the failure or the surprising complication (the "But").
5. Act 3 · what's next: the breakthrough, the people working on it, what changes if it works.
6. Honest caveats: what's unproven, timelines, who disagrees.
7. Close: one memorable line plus a pointer to a related video.

10 · Call review scorecard (one call a day, 10 minutes)

CRITERION	SCORE 1–5	EVIDENCE / FIX
Opening: clear reason, warm tone, permission or agenda set
Talk time: did I talk less than half?
Discovery: problem → implication → root cause → quantified
Labels and mirrors used; got a "that's right"
Offer tied to their words; no feature dump
Price stated plainly, followed by silence
Objections answered with questions, not arguments
Clear ask, or a dated next step (an advance)
Voice: pace, pauses, downward inflection, no fillers
Honesty: nothing I'd be uncomfortable hearing played back

11 · Content post-mortem (each video, 5 minutes)

QUESTION	ANSWER
Viewed vs. swiped (shorts) or click-through rate (long)?
Average % viewed? Where is the biggest drop on the retention curve?
What was on screen and being said at that moment?
Shares and saves relative to views?
Best comment, and does it suggest a follow-up video?
The ONE thing I'll change next time:

12 · Weekly scorecard

METRIC	TARGET	ACTUAL	METRIC	TARGET	ACTUAL
Full / Standard / MVD days	4 / 2 / 1		Shorts posted	3
Dojo calls (Gauntlet)	20+		Hooks written	35+
Real conversations	set by seat		Avg % viewed (shorts)	track trend
Booked / showed	set by seat		Shares + saves	track trend
Calls reviewed with scorecard	5		Long video progress	on schedule?
Applications / outreach	wk 3–5: 30+		Ideas added to bank	10
Hours of sleep (avg)	7+		Energy (avg 1–10)	—

PART 11

Traps, scams & red flags

Most beginners don't fail from lack of talent. They fail from one of these.

Vetting a setter or closer gig: ask before you accept

ASK	GREEN FLAG	RED FLAG
Do I pay anything to join?	No. They pay you.	A "certification" or "training fee" before any work
Where do leads come from?	Their content, ads or an existing list; numbers shared	"You generate your own leads", for a role called closer
What's the offer, the price and the refund rate?	Clear answers; a product that gets real results	Vague; income claims; "just sell the dream"
Can I hear call recordings from the current team?	Yes	No, or the calls are high-pressure
How is commission calculated, and when is it paid?	In writing, with dates	Verbal only; "after the client finishes paying"
Can I speak to a current rep?	Yes	Excuses
What does the first month look like?	Onboarding, scripts, call reviews	"Just start dialling"

The ten traps

1. Pay-to-get-hired academies promising income. Legitimate employers pay you.[18]
2. Selling something that hurts buyers. Short-term money, long-term damage (BYJU'S).[20]
3. Tutorial hell. Courses and books feel productive. Keep the 1:2 learning-to-doing ratio.
4. Gear before reps. No new equipment before 30 videos.
5. Vanity metrics. Followers and likes. Track retention, replies, show rate and cash.
6. Comparing your chapter 1 to someone's chapter 20. Cleo Abram's 2.5-year sprint came after five years at Vox.
7. Hustle culture and sleep debt. It wrecks the consolidation that makes skill permanent.
8. Niche-hopping every two weeks. Commit for 90 days, then review with data.
9. Doing everything at 100%. That's why the MVD exists. Sustainable beats heroic.
10. Waiting until you feel ready. Readiness comes after reps, not before.

THE ONE-LINE TEST

If an "opportunity" talks more about lifestyle (cars, laptops on beaches, "quit your 9–5") than about the product, the customer and the work, walk away.

PART 12

Minimal library + Sales Dojo map

Few books, read deeply, applied immediately. One at a time. Your Sales Dojo app already contains lessons from the sales books, so use those instead of rereading.

RESOURCE	WHEN	USE IT FOR	IN SALES DOJO
Fanatical Prospecting · Jeb Blount	Wks 1–4	Pipeline mindset, phone framework, brush-off ledge	Learn · Gauntlet
Never Split the Difference · Chris Voss	Wks 1–3	Voice, mirroring, labelling, calibrated questions	Learn · Articulation Warm-up
SPIN Selling · Neil Rackham	Wks 2–4	Discovery questions, advances, objection prevention	Learn · Gauntlet
Gap Selling · Keenan	Wks 2–4	Current state → future state, root cause, quantifying	Learn
$100M Offers / $100M Leads · Alex Hormozi	Wks 3–8	Value equation, offers, lead generation	Learn · Strategy Room

Watch list

- Colin and Samir's interview with Cleo Abram on how she built Huge If True.[3] Plus Cleo's own "Why I left Vox".[4]
- Alex Hormozi, "I taught 116+ salesmen my closing framework" (CLOSER).[14]
- Ali Abdaal's income breakdown videos, as a reality check on timelines.[10]
- Any Veritasium video: notice how it starts from a misconception.

Daily Sales Dojo routine

WEEKS 1–4 · DOJO AS PRIMARY PRACTICE

Articulation Warm-up (5 min) → one lesson plus quiz (10 min) → full Gauntlet, 5 calls (30 min) → Objection Blitz (5 min). About 50 minutes a day.

WEEK 5+ · DOJO AS WARM-UP

Articulation Warm-up plus one Gauntlet call before your real shift (15 min). Use Strategy Room or 1v1 Debate on weak spots your real-call reviews reveal.

PART 13

Your answers, and what comes next v3 is built on everything you've told me. The next version should be built on data from your first two weeks.

QUESTION	YOUR ANSWER	WHERE IT CHANGED THE PLAN
Where are you based, and which market?	India; US/UK/foreign clients first	Parts 02 and 04: remote seat, 19:00–23:00 IST window, USD/GBP pay
What fills the rest of your day?	Training, sleep, cooking, eating, uncuttable leisure	Part 06: fixed blocks; full-time jobs become a fallback only
Minimum income by day 90?	₹35K/month	Part 02: pay-structure math, base or per-show pay first, hours reconciled weekly
Content language?	English only	Part 08; content doubles as job-application proof
Silent hours?	3 hours, deep focus, no disturbance	Part 06: one unbroken block, content then sales
Subjects you'd research for years?	Space and AI, plus the human body	Part 08: your show and its 30-question starter bank
What did "Random Brainstorm" mean?	Curiosity questions: "Does 4D exist?", "Can you cry from one eye?"	Part 08: your show's format, and possibly its name
Fear ranking?	Camera → calls → rejection → messaging	Part 03: messaging-first seat, faceless content, a career-only camera ladder
Equipment?	MacBook Air M2, iPhone 16 Plus, fair-good internet, mostly reliable power	Parts 04 and 08: no content gear needed; router UPS and hotspot backup

Send me these after two weeks (for v4)

1. Your fear scores (0–10) for each rung you attempted, before and after.
   Shows whether the ladder is pitched right or needs smaller steps.
2. Your show name and links to your first 5 shorts.
   I'll review hooks, pacing and accuracy against modules C3–C6.
3. How many applications and Looms you've sent, and any replies.
   Tells us whether the problem is volume, the message, or the targeting.
4. The details of any job offer before you accept it.
   We vet it against Part 11 and the ₹35K math in Part 02.

LAST WORD

Ninety days from now you'll either have results or reasons. This plan is built so that even on scared or bad weeks you collect rungs, reps and rupees. Start with your least scary thing today. Log it. Fix one thing a week. That is the whole game.
